(本文)

We have devised a special calculation method. To illustrate this method, let's say we want to calculate a and b . We multiply a by the number of digits in a , subtract b from that result, and then—if the sum of a and b is even—square it, and if it is odd, take the reciprocal. We express this calculation as aTb . What about $2T3$? Multiply 2 by its number of digits (1), subtract 3, and since the sum of 2 and 3 is 5, take the reciprocal; the answer is -1 .

2-1. Calculate $4T2$.

2-2. Let $\underline{x}$ be an $\underline{n}$ -digit odd number and $\underline{y}$ be an even number. Express xTy in terms of $\underline{x}$, $\underline{y}$, and $\underline{n}$.

$$xTy =$$

2-3. Write down the phone number for Shiromoto Clinic.
